Hazardous Weather

Above average temperatures will combine with windy and dry conditions to produce critical fire weather in the Guadalupe Mountains today. A Red Flag Warning is in effect for this area this afternoon and evening.

We expect to see a greater coverage of storms today as the dryline moves across the Panhandles. Our primary hazards will be hail and damaging winds for any storm that becomes severe. Storm bases will be far to high today for any tornado risk. Storms are expected to start after 3 PM and diminish quickly after sunset.
